Death Be Not Proud by John Donne (modern translation)

*Death, don't be proud, though some have called you
Mighty and dreadful; for you are not so.
For those whom you think you overthrow
Die not, feeble Death, nor can you kill me.*

*From rest and sleep, your children,
We get much pleasure; so, from you even more must flow.
And the sooner our best to you will go,
The sooner they rest their bones and their soul is delivered.*

*You are a servant of fate, chance, kings, and desperate people,
And with poison, war, and sickness dwell,
Even opium or potions make us sleep as well,
Or better; why then are you swollen with pride?*

*One short sleep done, we will wake eternally,
And death will be no more.
Death, you will die.*
